From the Vineyard to the CRM in the Clouds

Robert Sinskey Vineyards runs a high-end organic/biodynamic winery in Napa Valley. Sinskey sells wine throughout the country, and has a small sales team that spends most of their time on the road, visiting restaurants and wine retailers, performing demos, and nurturing customers.

Sinskey was handling all of their sales data through a Filemaker Pro client/server system, integrating reports from eWinery. After four years, the system's maintenance needs, necessity for server synching, and lack of data integrity rules had become frustrating.

Robert Sinskey was interested in a customer relationship management system that freed them from maintenance, allowed users to roam freely with both laptops and mobile devices, and permitted easy updating, had built-in reminders and routing rules, and could be expanded to handle future integrations with distributors through POS and eWinery.

Challenge

Sinskey wanted to migrate over to a more customizable and flexible solution with no interruption in service or the ability of sales to work on the road.

Solution

- Echo Lane worked with Robert Sinskey to model and streamline their business process and data, then created an instance of Salesforce.com to work with these new processes and data. Echo Lane also created custom Allocation object and data process for future distributor integrations.
- Echo Lane migrated a clean set of historical data from Filemaker into salesforce.com on go-live day, and the sales team was working with salesforce.com and salesforce.com mobile that day.

Results

- Robert Sinskey's sales team can now access the same dataset from the road, and avoid all data conflicts.
- Salesforce.com's improved reporting and automation capabilities have improved organizational efficiency and allowed the sales team to maximize their time on the road, without having to spend any more physical time on the road.
